Parliament Sends Telegrams Containing Exposition of The British Stand

SITUATION IS QUIET

British Troops Continue to Parade Cairo, But Troop Movement Is Stopped

EVACUATING SUDAN
Khartum, Sudan, Nov. 26.—The Egyptian units of the Egyptian army have received orders to evacuate the Sudan forthwith. The fourth battalion already has left. The third battalion with artillery will leave shortly.

Geneva, Nov. 26.—A telegram of protest against the British action in Egypt following the assassination of the Sirdar, Sir Lee Stack, was received today by the secretariat of the League of Nations from the Egyptian parliament under the signature of the president of that body. The text indicates that a similar communication has been forwarded to all the world parliaments.

The League officials seem in doubt as to what to do with the communication, coming in as it does from the parliament and not from the Egyptian government.

Whether it shall be distributed officially to the members of the League council which is meeting shortly in Rome has not yet been determined, but officials of this morning expressed the opinion that the most likely course would be to transmit it to all the members of the League for their information.

MUCH EASIER

London, Nov. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, informed the British government in a message today that the situation in Egypt was much easier today as a result of the repulse since the resignation of the British cabinet.

Lord Allenby, it was said in official quarters, believes the Zivari Pasha cabinet will accept the remaining British demands for open direct negotiations for settlement of the differences existing between the governments.

Official dispatches assert the population seems to have become reconciled to the new state of affairs and it is believed in government quarters that if the Zivari cabinet accepts the demands they will be tolerated by the present British government, if it gets a smooth start, will be able to strengthen its foothold so that it can withstand the attacks of the opposition, which are certain to be strong in the new assembly.

Avoid Appearance of Pressure
Lord Allenby and Neville Henderson, the British diplomatic representative in Cairo, meanwhile are not making contacts with the new government to a greater extent than their official duties require, it being desired to prevent prevalence of the idea in Egypt that Great Britain is influencing the new government policy.

While the movement of any British troops toward Egypt has been temporarily suspended the troops actually within Egyptian boundaries are constantly moving toward and about the concentration points at Cairo and Alexandria. British troops are being marched through the streets of Cairo daily in accordance with the British custom in similar cases in near eastern territory based on experience as to the best means of deterring would be rioters. Lord Allenby informed the home government that there were three battalions of troops in Cairo and that they were marched through the streets late last night and probably would be ordered out again today.

QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED IN CENSUS GIVEN

For Agriculture, Census Considered Most Important in State's History

WHAT IS SOUGHT

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 26.—A total of 158 questions will be asked of farmers in North Dakota and other states of the union in the agricultural census to be taken by the federal government beginning Dec. 1 and ending Jan. 31, 1925. All information will be secured as of Jan. 1, 1925.

Questions on the schedule are divided into 12 classes—information concerning the farm operator, farm acreage, farm values, farm debt, farm expenses, cooperative marketing activities, farm facilities, farm population, crops harvested in 1924, forests and forest products, livestock and livestock products.

"For agriculture, this census is considered to be the most important ever taken in the history of the country," declares Rex E. Willard, farm economist at the Agricultural college, who is cooperating with the federal officials in charge.

The reason for its importance is the fact that agriculture is at the bottom, or has just started to climb, in the cycle of depression and prosperity.

"The agricultural census was authorized by the last session of congress, and is being conducted by the United States bureau of commerce. For the past several years we have had many proposals for relieving the agricultural depression, some extravagant and some apparently sound.

"The peculiar part of it is that despite the multiplicity of cures suggested, no one has known exactly what was wrong with the patient. That may be the explanation of the reason why such widely varying relief measures have been proposed.

"This agricultural census which is about to be started will furnish the facts regarding our culture, and will set at rest all guesses and extravagant statements made by people as to the status of farming."

Information called for in the schedule includes acreage of farms, amount of land rented, rate of rental in various crops, summer fallow, production of all crops, number of head of various classes of livestock and poultry, and value of livestock and livestock products.

Information is called for from which a net worth statement can be prepared. Data will be secured on the value of the farm, buildings, implements and machinery. Farm expenditures and taxes for 1924 will also be listed. Reports will be secured on the value of farm products sold through cooperative marketing organizations, and on the value of supplies purchased through farmers' organizations.

That census officials are moved by the spirit of the times is indicated by question No. 39, "Is there a radio outfit on this farm?"

MORAL BUT NOT LEGAL DEBT

Court Finds State Morally Obligated to Carnegie

The Home Trust Company of Hoboken, New Jersey, as executor of the estate of Andrew Carnegie has a moral but not a legal claim against the state of North Dakota for $35,000 and interest for one year at four percent, Judge Fred Janssen decided today.

The claim originated, the court's memorandum recites, in 1902 when Thomas Marshall as representative of the board of trustees of the normal and industrial school at Ellendale asked the former iron king for $35,000 to build Carnegie Hall, the board of trustees giving certificates of indebtedness due in 20 years. Judge Janssen says in his opinion it was understood by Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Marshall that the obligation was a moral rather than a legal one, and that they depended upon the legislature to legalize the transaction. The court concluded that "it is my opinion that this is a matter for the legislature, and not for the courts."

REQUISITIONS ARE ISSUED

Governor R. A. Nectos today issued two requisitions at the request of North Dakota authorities. The state of Nebraska is asked to permit return of Ed O'Shea to McLean county to face a charge of grand larceny, and the Governor of Minnesota is asked to permit to return J. H. Pooler to Barnes county for forgery in the third degree.

RADIO FANS IN CITY SEEK TO GET OLD WORLD

Effort Is Believed to Have Been Successful by at Least One Local Fan

EXPERIENCE IS TOLD

Mandan, Nov. 25. B. E. Kennelly last night picked up Aberdeen, Scotland. The music came fairly well, but the voice far better. The station signed off at 9:20 Mandan time, as 2BD.

Bismarck radio fans tried mightily last night to get messages from across the Atlantic, and at least one, Richard E. Wenzel, is reasonably sure that he heard a radio program broadcast from France.

All stations in the United States were asked to be silent for an hour, between 10 and 11, while the effort was being made to receive foreign programs. Several local fans heard music, but were not certain that it came from abroad.

The Memphis broadcasting station, announcing that a foreign program was being broadcast, asked any fans who believed they heard a program, to notify them. Mr. Wenzel today dispatched the following letter to the Memphis station:

Nov. 26, 1924.
Station WMC,
Commercial Appeal,
Memphis, Tenn.
Mr. Announcer:

I sent you a day letter today in relation to the reception of radio broadcasting from foreign countries. As stated in the message (and making allowance for difference between my watch and the Western Union Regulator) we got into touch with this station at 10:32 P. M. Reception was fine at this point. A man was making an address, apparently, and we heard perfectly through the loud speaker, but were unable to understand the language.

We, therefore, sent out for some friends who could understand French, which was, apparently, the language spoken. Before they arrived, however, the speech had been concluded and the piano music had been going for about five minutes.

At the end of the speaking, we thought we caught part of an announcement, but several regenerative sets started working, and we could get nothing clear.

The piano music continued, as stated in the message, until 11:02 P. M. when your station announced its first number, cutting off the other station. Your succeeding announcement, that you had just heard piano music coming from a foreign station from 10:40 to 11:00 without any announcement of the sending station, was pure corroboration, at least, of our having been the recipients of foreign radio broadcasting.

Just about five minutes before we located the station above referred to we tuned in on a station at which the language used was English. This may have been 2LO, London, as newspaper reports show that station to be operating on 365 meters, and we caught it at about that point on our dials. However, the local interference caused by regenerative tuning here made it impossible to do anything with it.

NO TRIBUNE THURSDAY

Thursday, November 27, being Thanksgiving Day, there will be no editions of The Tribune published.

Banks of the city, public buildings will be closed and much business suspended for the day.

NEEDY WILL BE GIVEN AID ON THANKSGIVING

Bismarck Will Eat Heartily. According to all Indications Today

NONE NEED GO HUNGRY

Salvation Army, Other Agencies and Individuals Extend Help for the Day

Most residents of Bismarck will eat heartily on Thanksgiving, and no known cases of need will go unheeded. With social agencies reporting little distress at this time, Bismarck will have one of the best Thanksgivings in many years. The good conditions resulting from this year's crop are expected to keep employment fairly steady during the winter months.

Local markets report a big sale of turkeys for tomorrow, while geese, ducks, and chickens also are in demand.

Business will be pretty well suspended in the city, with banks and public buildings and most business places closed for the day.

There are some who might go hungry on the nation's annual feast day were it not for helping hands about the city. Ensign H. Pieterz of the Salvation Army said today that 20 to 25 families would receive each a big turkey dinner, and that it was possible that donations would be received during the day which would make possible the addition of some delicacies in the baskets. While distress is not wide spread at this time, there are some very worthy families who will be helped, he added.

The Salvation Army plans a Thanksgiving service tomorrow night at its canteen, with Dr. R. S. Engle speaking on the meaning of Thanksgiving.

Many individuals help. Several kind-hearted individuals called the Red Cross office to get the names of families who were in need of assistance for Thanksgiving, and Mrs. Mary C. Cashel has given the names of several. In most cases the individuals calling desired to give aid to children. Miss Cashel expressed the belief that all in dire need would be aided. Several families she called on, and who, she thought, would appreciate a Thanksgiving dinner, have been invited out for the day, she found.

Because Christmas comes so soon after Thanksgiving the relief efforts usually are concentrated at that time, she said, outside of the work of aid by city and county, social service agencies and individuals, which goes on regularly.

At The Prison
Prisoners in the state penitentiary will have two good meals tomorrow, according to Warden Lee, with ducks furnishing the chief article on the tables. A talk and a movie program also is planned. But one prisoner will spend Thanksgiving in the county jail, unless he received company tonight, and he will be fed turkey. Sheriff Hedstrom said.

Several church services will be held. The Protestant union service, under the auspices of the ministerial association, will be held at 10:30 a. m. at the Evangelical church. The First Lutheran church announces a service Thursday at 8 o'clock, and Zion Lutheran church will hold a service at 10:30 a. m.

8 DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED

Association of Commerce Directors to Name Officers

Eight new directors of the Association of Commerce, elected by ballot by the membership, were announced by the canvassing committee of the board today as follows: F. L. Conklin, George F. Will, W. L. Nuebel, L. S. Craswell, J. P. Meyer, Sveinbjorn Johnson, J. P. French, J. P. Jackson. The first five named are to serve for two years and the last three named are to serve for one year each. Two hold-over members of the board are E. B. Cox and Worth Lumley.

It is planned, Secretary Bradley said, to have the new board members meet during the week to elect officers for the ensuing year. The secretary said that the members responded in fine shape in casting their ballots, a large vote being registered, which was unusual. Will be held. Twice the number elected had been nominated by vote of the membership.

Good Meal For Prisoners on Thanksgiving

Inmates of the North Dakota state penitentiary will eat heartily on Thanksgiving Day, Warden J. J. Lee said today. Duck will be the piece of resistance, however, instead of turkey, and all the trimmings will be provided in a noon meal. A good evening meal also is planned.

The warden expects to have a speaker emphasize the spirit of Thanksgiving before the inmates in an auditorium meeting, and a movie entertainment will be given.

SOME OF IT IS PLAIN

Announcement Heard Clearly—First Real Successful Trans-Atlantic Attempt

New York, Nov. 26.—Trans-Atlantic broadcasting of words, singing and instrumental music so plainly that the average amateur can pick it up is an accomplished fact today.

Reports are pouring into the Garden City offices of Radio Broadcast, the publication which fostered the plan of a week of trans-Atlantic broadcasting, of success by amateurs in picking up programs from Newcastle, Bournemouth, Aberdeen and Madrid. Last night was the second night of the week's foreign broadcasting and marked the first widespread success. Tuesday night scattered reports were received of particular success, but not until last night had foreign programs been received with satisfactory clarity. One amateur in Bronxville last night picked up a piano recital from Aberdeen that he was unable to transmit the sound emitted by telephone to the Garden City laboratories.

Most of the fans reported hearing GNO of Newcastle, England, and 2BD, of Aberdeen, Scotland. Others said they listened, Lyons, France; 2LO, London; 2LJ, Leeds, England; and one said he received weather conditions and reports radiated from F.L. the Eiffel Tower, in Paris.

COURT RULES ON RISK LAW

Physical Impact Not Necessary to Support Claim

The supreme court, in an opinion handed down today, laid down the principle that physical impact is not necessary to produce injuries for which compensation may be claimed from the state Workmen's Compensation Bureau. In the case before the court, involving the death of Fred Pace of Minot, whose widow claimed that he was overcome by heat in the plant of the Northern States Power company of that city and that this led to apoplexy, which caused his death the court held Pace was entitled to recover.

The compensation bureau asserted in defense that the testimony with regard to him being overcome by heat was not supported by fact and that the connection between this, if true, and his death, was wholly conjecture.

Mrs. Fanny Pace, widow of the deceased, will receive more than $7,000 under the decision and compensation law benefits, it was estimated by attorneys for the bureau.

The possibility of serious riots in Cairo and other centers, he said, was greatly reduced.

QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED IN CENSUS GIVEN

For Agriculture, Census Considered Most Important in State's History

WHAT IS SOUGHT

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 26.—A total of 158 questions will be asked of farmers in North Dakota and other states of the union in the agricultural census to be taken by the federal government beginning Dec. 1 and ending Jan. 31, 1925. All information will be secured as of Jan. 1, 1925.

Questions on the schedule are divided into 12 classes,—information concerning the farm operator, farm tenure, acreages, farm values, farm debt, farm expenses, cooperative marketing activities, farm facilities, farm population, crops harvested in 1924, forests and forest products, livestock and livestock products.

"For agriculture, this census is considered to be the most important ever taken in the history of the country," declares Rex E. Willard, farm economist at the Agricultural college, who is cooperating with the federal officials in charge.

The reason for its importance is the fact that agriculture is at the bottom, or has just started to climb, in the cycle of depression and prosperity.

"The agricultural census was authorized by the last session of congress, and is being conducted by the United States bureau of commerce. For the past several years, we have had many proposals for relieving the agricultural depression, some extravagant and some apparently sound.

"The peculiar part of it is that despite the multiplicity of cures suggested, no one has known exactly what was wrong with the patient. That may be the explanation of the reason why such widely varying relief measures have been proposed.

"This agricultural census which is about to be started will furnish the facts regarding agriculture, and will set at rest all guesses and extravagant statements made by people as to the status of farming."

Information called for in the schedule includes acreage of farms, amount of land rented, rate of rent, land in various crops, summer fallow, pasture, production of all crops, number of head of various classes of livestock and poultry, and value of livestock and livestock products.

Information is called for from which a net worth statement can be prepared. Data will be secured on the value of the farm, buildings, implements and machinery. Farm expenditures for 1924 will also be listed. Reports will be secured on the value of farm products sold through cooperative marketing organizations, and on the value of supplies purchased through farmers' organizations.

That census officials are moved by the spirit of the times is indicated by question No. 39, "Is there a radio outfit on this farm?"

MORAL BUT NOT LEGAL DEBT

Court Finds State Morally Obligated to Carnegie

The Home Trust Company of Hoboken, New Jersey, as executor of the estate of Andrew Carnegie has a moral but not a legal claim against the state of North Dakota for $35,000 and interest for one year at four percent, Judge Fred Jansoni decided today.

The claim originated, the court's memorandum states, in 1902 when Thomas Marshall as representative of the board of trustees of the normal and industrial school at Ellendale asked the former iron king for $35,000 to build Carnegie Hall, the board of trustees giving certificates of indebtedness due in 20 years.

Judge Jansoni says in his opinion it was understood by Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Marshall that the obligation was a moral rather than a legal one, and that they depended upon the legislature to legalize the transaction. The court concluded that "it is my opinion that this is a matter for the legislature, and not for the courts."

NO TRIBUNE THURSDAY

Thursday, November 27, being Thanksgiving Day, there will be no editions of The Tribune published.

Banks of the city, public buildings will be closed and much business suspended for the day.

NEEDY WILL BE GIVEN AID ON THANKSGIVING

Bismarck Will Eat Heartily. According to all Indications Today

NONE NEED GO HUNGRY

Salvation Army, Other Agencies and Individuals Extend Help for the Day

Most residents of Bismarck will eat heartily on Thanksgiving, and no known cases of need will go unheeded. With social agencies reporting little distress at the time, Bismarck will have one of the best Thanksgivings in many years. The good conditions resulting from this year's crop are expected to keep employment fairly steady during the winter months.

Local markets report a big sale of turkeys for tomorrow, while geese, ducks and chickens also are in demand.

Business will be pretty well suspended in the city, with banks and public buildings and most business places closed for the day.

There are some who might go hungry on the nation's annual feast day were it not for helping hands about the city. Ensign H. Piercy of the Salvation Army said today that 20 to 25 families would receive each a big chicken from the Army for Thanksgiving dinner, and that it was possible that donations would be received during the day which would make possible the addition of some delicacies in the baskets. While distress is not wide spread at this time, there are some very worthy families who will be helped, he added.

The Salvation Army plans a Thanksgiving service tomorrow night at its Citadel, with Dr. R. S. Enge speaking on the meaning of Thanksgiving.

Many Individuals Help
Several kind hearted individuals called on the Red Cross office to get the names of families who were in need of assistance for Thanksgiving, and Miss Mary Cashel has given the names of several. In most cases the individuals calling desired to give aid to children. Miss Cashel expressed the belief that all in dire need would be aided. Several families she called on, and who, she thought, would appreciate a Thanksgiving dinner, have been invited out for the day, she found.

Because Christmas comes so soon after Thanksgiving the relief efforts usually are concentrated at that time, she said outside of the work of aid by city and county, social service agencies and individuals, which goes on regularly.

At The Prison
Prisoners in the state penitentiary will have two good meals tomorrow, according to Warden Leek, with ducks furnishing the chief article on the tables. A talk and a movie program also is planned. But one prisoner will spend Thanksgiving in the county jail, unless he received company tonight, and he will be fed turkey.

Several church services will be held. The Protestant union service, under the auspices of the ministerial association, will be held at 10:30 a. m. at the Evangelical church. The First Lutheran church announces a service Thursday at 8 o'clock, and Zion Lutheran church will hold a service at 10:30 a. m.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 26.—Hiram Bingham, Republican Governor-elect, was nominated for United States Senator by the Republican state convention on the first ballot. He will oppose Hamilton Holt, League of Nations advocate, who was nominated today by the Democratic state convention in New Haven.

Good Meal For Prisoners on Thanksgiving

Inmates of the North Dakota state penitentiary will eat heartily on Thanksgiving Day, Warden J. C. Lee said today. Duck will be the piece de resistance, however, instead of turkey, and all the trimmings will be provided in a noon meal. A good evening meal also is planned.

The warden expects to have a speaker emphasize the spirit of Thanksgiving before being released to an auditorium meeting, and a movie entertainment will be given.

Weather Forecast

For Bismarck and vicinity: Fair tonight and Thursday. Somewhat colder tonight.

For North Dakota: Fair tonight and Thursday. Somewhat colder tonight.

Weather Conditions

The low pressure area is moving eastward very slowly and is centered over Ontario this morning with a trough extending southward to Texas. It has been accompanied by rising temperature over the Plains States, Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region. A large high pressure area, accompanied by colder weather, prevails over the northern Rocky Mountain and Plateau States. Light, scattered precipitation occurred over the northeastern Rocky Mountain slope, while elsewhere the weather is generally fair.

ROBERT BYRNE

The first of the newly elected state officials to come to Bismarck is Robert Byrne of Ansgard, McKenzie county, elected secretary of state. He will take the position made vacant by the resignation of Thomas Hall, Congressman-elect, late today.

Mr. Byrne will serve out Mr. Hall's unexpired term until January, under appointment by Governor Nestos, when he will assume the post by virtue of his election, for two years. Mr. Byrne was a popular member of the last state senate, being popular with both the members of his own political faction and those opposed to him, because of his personality and fairness.

His father was a member of the jury that found John Brown guilty of treasoning and A. D. Nicely guarded the jail where Brown was confined.

8 DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED

Association of Commerce Directors to Name Officers

Eight new directors of the Association of Commerce, elected by ballot by the membership, were announced by the canvassing committee of the board today as follows: F. L. Conklin, George F. Will, W. L. Nuesle, L. S. Craswell, P. J. Meyer, Sveinbjorn Johnson, J. P. French, J. A. Jackson. The first five named are to serve for two years and the last three named are to serve for one year each. Two hold-over members of the board are E. B. Cox and Worth Lumry.

It is planned, Secretary Bradley said, to have the new board members meet during the week to elect officers for the ensuing year. The secretary said that the members were in line in shape in casting their ballots, a large vote being registered, which was unusually well balanced. Twice the number elected had been nominated by vote of the membership.

Found Near Cabin

The body of Mr. Fee was found 50 yards from the cabin occupied by Miss Watkins and a half-mile from the cabin occupied by the Fees on Saturday. Searchers believe that the body had been placed in the position in which it was found sometime Monday night. Miss Watkins said that she was going to repair a radio aerial as he left the mountain place owned by a Los Angeles banker and occupied by the Fees.

At her home in Alhambra Miss Watkins told of her trip out to her mountain cabin last Saturday and renewed her explanation of the finding of a suit of clothing identified as worn by Mr. Fee by saying the garb had been given to her sometime ago by the banker for the purpose of providing hiking clothes for men guests whom she and her sister often entertained at the cabin.

That Fee had been missing since last Saturday afternoon when he journeyed to the mountains with his wife. He was last seen when he told her he was going to repair a radio aerial as he left the mountain place owned by a Los Angeles banker and occupied by the Fees.

HAD TO CHOOSE BETWEEN HIS WIFE AND LITTLE BOY—CHOSE HIS WIFE

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Walker Milner, farmer, of Collierville, Tennessee, near here, had to choose between the two things that he loved best—his wife or his three-year-old son child of Milner's first wife who died when the baby was born, according to the story he told authorities after his arrest for child abandonment.

"She, my wife, just couldn't seem to endure my baby," he told police. "I love my boy, but I love my wife, too."

Announcement Heard Clearly—First Real Successful Trans-Atlantic Attempt

New York, Nov. 26.—Trans-Atlantic broadcasting of words, singing and instrumental music so plainly that the average amateur can pick it up is an accomplished fact today.

Reports are pouring into the Garden City offices of Radio Broadcast, the publication which fostered the plan of a week of trans-Atlantic broadcasting, of success by amateurs in picking up programs from Newcastle, Bournemouth, Aberdeen and Madrid. Last night was the second night of the week's foreign broadcasting and marked the first widespread success. Tuesday night scattered reports were received of partial success, but not until last night had foreign programs been received with satisfactory clarity. One amateur in Bronxville last night picked up a piano recital from Aberdeen that he was unable to transmit the sound emitted by telephone to the Garden City laboratories.

Girl Near Whose Cabin He Was Found Professes Ignorance of Crime

San Bernardino, California, Nov. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Miss Mary Watkins, approaching the witness stand at a coroner's inquest to be held here today, professed ignorance of the circumstances surrounding the tragic death of her employer, William R. Fee, Alhambra bank president, whose body was found yesterday by a searching party in the San Bernardino mountains near a cabin maintained by Miss Watkins. Sheriff W. R. Shay believes the banker was murdered.

Mr. Fee had been missing since last Saturday afternoon when he journeyed to the mountains with his wife. He was last seen when he told her he was going to repair a radio aerial as he left the mountain place owned by a Los Angeles banker and occupied by the Fees.

COURT RULES ON RISK LAW

Physical Impact Not Necessary to Support Claim

The supreme court, in an opinion handed down today, laid down the principle that physical impact is not necessary to produce injuries for which compensation may be claimed from the state Workmen's Compensation Bureau. In the case before the court, involving the death of Fred Pace of Minot, whose widow claimed that he was overcome by heat in the plant of the Northern States Power Company of that city and that this led to apoplexy which caused his death the court held Pace was entitled to recover.

The compensation bureau asserted in defense that the testimony with regard to him being overcome by heat was not supported by fact and that the connection between this, if true, and his death, was wholly conjectural.

Mrs. Fanny Pace, widow of the deceased, will receive more than $7,000 under the decision and compensation law benefits, it was estimated by attorneys for the bureau.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"
Rub on Good Old Musterole
That cold may turn into "Flu," Gripe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once. Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.
Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.
As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister. Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.
To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c in jars and tubes.

The New Studebaker STANDARD SIX SEDAN $1595

Know what's underneath the paint before you buy

YOU wouldn't think of buying a house without first knowing how it is built and the quality of materials used. In selecting a piece of furniture you are sure to find out whether it is solid wood or veneer.
Yet many people who exercise care in most purchases buy automobiles without even lifting the hood or knowing about the hidden qualities of body and chassis construction that really determine one's satisfaction with a closed car.
We want you to know about the unseen qualities of the new Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.
Down underneath its superb body finish is a sturdy framework of carefully selected ash, glued together and fastened in place by screws—not nailed. Ash is scarce and expensive, but Studebaker uses it because it best combines proper weight and strength.
Upholstery is genuine mohair of high quality. Various grades of mohair look much alike—the big difference is in the quality.
Beneath this mohair covering are many nests of cushion springs, padded with heavy burlap, upholstery cotton and curled hair. Almost any car seems comfortable on the showroom floor, but it's quality such as this that makes the Studebaker Standard Six remain comfortable after years of service.
The same standards of excellence are maintained throughout the body and chassis. In the engine, for example, the crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces, a practice that results in the smooth, quiet, vibrationless performance that characterizes all Studebaker cars.
Judged solely on what your eye can see—in beauty of line and finish and exterior refinements—the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan will command your instant approval.
But go deeper than that. Compare its hidden, vital qualities—its design, materials and workmanship—with cars selling for hundreds of dollars more.
Studebaker never compromises—never uses a substitute for genuine quality. Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for 72 years.
Come in and let us tell you the "inside story" of the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

Milestones of Service
THIS rioting, pushing, fast-stepping age of ours, with all its complexity, concentration and achievements, never could have attained its present development had it not been for petroleum and the long list of useful products which stem from this one widely distributed raw material.
Today, when almost everything we do, from the felling of trees to the keeping of accounts, is accomplished with mechanical assistance, the refining of crude oil and the compounding of the numberless products derived from this base is one, if not the most essential of all industries.
From crude petroleum come the most readily procured, best and cheapest lubricating oils and greases, and from the same source we get gasoline, the most economical, most mobile and most compact source of power yet discovered.
In the upbuilding of this great industry, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been a pioneer; an advanced worker on the forefront of progress.
Today, skillful, highly trained men working with every facility which science, or their own ingenuity can suggest, are striving to perfect still further, the scores of useful products going to the public under the brands of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).
Throughout the ten middle western states in which this company maintains distributing facilities, is an ever-growing organization working, building to insure every person in the territory getting standardized, superior quality petroleum products he needs, when and where he wants them.
And always the company is looking forward, building and training for the years to come.
Office boys of thirty years ago are Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) today—office boys of today are being schooled, trained and developed for places on the Board thirty years from now.
The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the record it has made in keeping ahead of the times, and believes that each progressive step has been marked by a milestone of service to the thirty million people of the Middle West.

THEIR THANKSGIVING

By Florence Borner

Grandmother Smith walked hurriedly toward the window.

"I am afraid we will have to eat our Thanksgiving dinner by ourselves, Father," she said. "It looks so stormy that none of the children will venture driving ten miles out in the country, and I cannot blame them. But, just the same it will be the first Thanksgiving Day we have spent alone for many a year."

It was one of those snowy, blustery days which visit our state so often in late November, and the cheery kitchen of the old farmhouse presented a great contrast to the scene outside. Outside it was cold and dreary, inside warm and comfortable. The fire in the stove crackled merrily, and an enticing aroma came from the oven as Grandmother looked after the huge turkey which but a few hours before had proudly strutted in the barnyard, but was now destined to serve a more useful purpose.

The clock on the mantel chimed ten, and still there was no lull to the storm outside.

"It's too bad," said Grandmother Smith. "Here we had been planning on this Thanksgiving for weeks. And, just now you and me are going to eat the dozen pies, three cakes and big plum pudding on the shelves yonder in the pantry is a mystery to me."

"With all the children and the grandchildren here, I was thinking, maybe we had ought to have killed a rooster or two to help out with the turkey, but as it is, I am glad we didn't."

"Grandfather rose from his place by the kitchen stove and laid a caressing hand on her shoulder. "Don't worry, Mother," he said. "The day is not over by any means, and one can never tell what may happen. And, if the worst comes, and nobody shows up, think what a feast we will have for days and days."

"Grandmother sighed. "I never did care for cold turkey," she said. And if you and me eat all those pies I can see where we both get indigestion with our old stomachs."

"But what can't be cured must be endured, I suppose, and we must not be ungrateful to the Giver on the day set apart from all others to render our thanks. But, it is too bad the storm had to come on this day of all others."

The old lady walked slowly to the window facing the road.

"For goodness sake, Father come here quick," she said. "Can you see what kind of a contraption that is down the road anyway? I can't see very well without my glasses, but it actually looks like some kind of a gypsy outfit."

Grandfather Smith hastily adjusted his glasses and took his place by his wife. "No," he said. "It is no gypsy outfit, of that I am certain; but just what kind of a wagon it is I cannot say, or what it is doing out in this kind of weather. The vehicle in question was an overgrown bus of a brilliant yellow hue. Its gaudy sides bore flaming posters, and it appeared to have become stalled in a snowbank a short distance from the lane which led to the farmhouse."

"Look Father," exclaimed the old lady. "Isn't that some one coming down the road, or what is it?" Grandfather looked in the direction she pointed and saw a traveler buffeted by the storm making his way toward the house. "Yes," he answered his wife's query. "Some poor traveler is coming here to get warm. I wouldn't doubt a bit that he is from that stalled car down in the road, and maybe he must be nearly frozen. I will set the coffee pot on the stove and have a hot drink ready by the time he gets here. It's awful to be caught out in such weather."

Suiting action to her word Grandmother bustled about and as a loud rap sounded on the door the boiling coffee sent out an aroma which must have been very appetizing to the wayfarer who had battled his way over a half mile through the elements.

"Come right in," said Grandfather Smith hospitably. "Mother saw you coming and has a fine cup of coffee and a bit of food ready for you."

Seating himself by the fire the stranger warmed his hands and hat gratefully accepted the cup of steaming coffee.

"This certainly seems fine," he said looking at Grandmother, and with an appreciative glance about the comfortable room added: "This takes me back to the time when I was a boy and went to my grandparents' home for Thanksgiving."

The stranger was but a boy probably twenty one or two years old and the way he dove into the huge slab of pumpkin pie which Grandmother Smith gave him showed that he had not forgotten how to appreciate good cooking.

"I suppose you folks are wondering who I am, and how I happen to be here at this time," the young man said having finished his repast. "I don't suppose you see outfits like this in this neighborhood very often."

"Well," said Grandfather, "we had been sort of speculating on what kind of a bus it was before you came in."

The young fellow laughed. "That bus is the property of the Johnsons," he said, and contained the entire equipment of their entertainment. My name," he added, "is Harry Johnson and besides myself there are five members of our Company. My father, three brothers and sister are still in the wagon."

Grandmother gasped. "My goodness," she said, "the you a sitting there and telling me your sister is out in this storm with your father and brothers? The poor child must come here right away and so must the rest of you. The young man smiled and looked at the speaker gratefully.

"Do not worry, my kind friend," he said. "Our wagon is fixed up almost as comfortably as you are here. We have a small heating stove and also cook, eat and sleep right in the wagon. What brought me here was the fact that we have lost or mislaid our tire pump and have suffered a puncture. I thought perhaps I could borrow a pump from you."

"Yes indeed you may have our pump," said Grandfather. "It is out in the garage with Lizzy." Grandmother had been thinking. "Say, said, why can't you folks all stay and have Thanksgiving dinner with us? Here we have a huge turkey and all the fixings and nobody but Father and I to eat them."

"By Gum," the young fellow exclaimed. "That sounds good to me and I'll bet Dad and the boys and Dot will be tickled to get a genuine home cooked Thanksgiving dinner. You see," he added, "it's kind of hard to cook things as we should like in the wagon and one gets mighty tired of hotel stuff." "When I ran out with the pump I will tell them of your invitation. Yes, and make it hearty," exclaimed both the old people. "If my rheumatism did not bother me, I would go out with you," said Grandfather, but as it is, I guess I will have to let you be the bearer of the invitation yourself."

Having donned his things the young fellow made his way to the garage where he got the desired tool after which he hurried down the lane.

Grandmother busied herself with the dinner.

"Just think, she said, bringing out a pan of potatoes and peeling them. "We were complaining, and here we are going to have company for dinner, and mighty fine company at that, if I don't miss my guess. Did you see how that young fellow enjoyed that piece of pumpkin pie I gave him?"

"Yes," answered Grandfather, "did, and here they all come," he added, looking from the window.

Six forms were seen making their way steadily for the house. Mr. Johnson was a man of about fifty years, thereabouts. His sons John, Frank and Donald were older than the young man who had visited the farmhouse first, Dorothy or Dot as they called her was a young lady of about seventeen.

After Harry had introduced his father, brothers and sister to the old people and hand shaking was over, Grandmother led her guests into the living room where they warmed themselves by the base burner. Excusing herself she was hurrying toward the kitchen when a girlish voice said: "May I help you prepare dinner, Mrs. Smith?"

Looking into the sweet face which reminded her of that of the dear daughter who had been sleeping for so many years in the little country churchyard, Grandmother assured Dot that she would be more than glad to have her assistance.

Carrying a stack of plates, Dot soon had the big table in the dining room in festive dress. Grandmother Smith's snowy linen and the silver set, which had been a wedding present some fifty years before made the table appear at its best, and when the pickles, jellies, preserves and other goodies made their appearance it was a sight fit for a king. What a dinner it was! Everything was so good that Mr. Johnson declared the taste would remain with him as long as he lived. And the Johnson boys, as boys will, ate and said nothing. But the end had to come at last and when all were filled to the brim there still remained enough to feed a hungry family or two.

Dot wiped the dishes and when things were all in their places again she took her father aside and whispered to him. Nodding his head in approval, he beckoned to the boys. "Let us go out a few minutes," he said, "and see if the weather is clearing up." But, once outside of the house, he told them what was in his mind, and the boys all joined heartily in whatever it was their father was proposing.

Coming in the house Mr. Johnson told his host and hostess that the boys were going back to the wagon but would soon return. The time passed pleasantly, Grandfather Smith found Mr. Johnson a most enjoyable conversationalist. Having traveled over much territory in his show business he knew many an anecdote and gladdened the old man by relating some of his experiences.

Soon the boys returned, loaded down with all sorts of paraphernalia. Mr. Johnson arose and said: "My friends, in order to partly show our appreciation for the good time you have given us we are going to stage an impromptu show for your benefit."

"We always show under tent, and for that reason the performance will not be quite as it would otherwise when we have our entire equipment, but we hope you will enjoy our effort."

Both Grandfather and Grandmother Smith were delighted. Being advanced in years and not in the best of health it had been impossible for them to attend many gatherings. Their only pleasures were on those occasions when their three children living in the near by city visited them. It had been more years than they could remember since they had attended a show together, and now here was one materializing before their very eyes!

The boys had brought out the old piano from its corner, and Dot seated herself before it. "While the boys and Father are getting ready I will play for you," she said.

A curtain composed of two sheets had been stretched across one end of the room and before this the little audience sat. Dot played several popular airs on the piano and then thinking something more familiar might be appreciated she played some old time songs such as "Swing, Nellie Home" and "Jingle Bells." Grandfather Smith said: "That tune takes me right back to the time we were out sleigh riding and I proposed to you, Mother." Yes, answered the old lady happily, and do you remember when I said "yes"; you dropped both lines and started into hugging me. Land sakes, she added, just think what would happen if we had been in an automobile at the time."

The "curtain" was pulled to one side and the performance began. Both old folks watched with big expressive eyes while the magical tricks so familiar to most of us were staged. Grandfather did feel some qualms when after Mr. Johnson had asked him for his watch and it had been handed to him he pounded it into a million pieces and seemingly melted them. But, when the watch had been handed back and sound he could hardly believe it to be his own. And Grandmother was struck speechless to see what a variety of things had been hiding in her Sunday bonnet. A rag doll, handkerchief, ribbons and many other things appeared from it, and the old lady was beginning to wonder how on earth she had ever been able to get it on with all that stuff in it. But the climax came when reaching in Grandfather's pocket Frank Johnson brought forth a dog so small that you could almost put in a tin cup. "What a cute, little fellow he is!" exclaimed the old man. Well, having gotten him from your pocket, he must belong to you said Frank. "No sir," answered Grandfather, "I never saw him until this minute."

So the fun went on. Songs were sung by the singers in costumes. Jokes were sprung and stunts were pulled off until finally the show was over.

"Land sakes," said Grandmother Smith. "It is five o'clock and as sure as anything, there is the sun peeping over the hill." While the show equipment was being gathered together Grandmother and Dot prepared lunch after which the visitors took their leave saying that they were billed for a show in the city that same evening.

"I will never forget you," said Dot kissing Grandmother on the cheek. "And I want you to know that this has been the happiest Thanksgiving I have had since my own dear mother died."

Grandmother wiped away a tear. "Well, dearie, she said it has always seemed to me that whenever we help to make another life happier it comes back to us a thousand fold. Father and I have not enjoyed ourselves as we have today for a long as we have lived. And the Johnson boys, as boys will, ate and said nothing. But the end had to come at last and when all were filled to the brim there still remained enough to feed a hungry family or two.

time and if you ever get out this way again don't forget to visit us. "No indeed I will not exclaimed Dot and thank you many many times." Waving her handkerchief she hurried down the lane where her brothers and father were swiftly making their way toward the only home they knew. It was not long before a hearty "ding chug" told the old folks that their Thanksgiving guests were on their way. And as they gazed after the car until a bend in the road hid it from their sight both Grandfather Smith and his wife knew that by freely serving they had been richly rewarded.

INSTITUTIONS OF N. D. SHOW BIG INCREASE

Educational, Charitable and Penal Institutions Have More People

The population of state institutions, penal, charitable and educational, is steadily increasing. It is shown in figures compiled by the state board of administration. The "population" of these institutions, 15 in number, increased from 6,986 in June, 1922, to 8,297 in June, 1924. The increase necessitates both additional employees and more money to run them, it is pointed out. Comparative figures on the number of persons in these institutions are as follows:

Institution	June, 1922	June, 1924
University	1858	2253
Agricultural College	1123	1167
State Teachers' Coll.
State Normal	756	882
Dickinson Normal	227	228
Minot Normal	241	242
Mayville Normal	179	180
Normal and Industrial School at Ellendale	356	372
School of Science	37	37
School for Deaf	119	119
School for Blind	33	33
Hospital for Insane	1252	1252
Penitentiary	236	221
Institution for Feeble Minded	321	424
Tuberculosis Sanitarium	141	100
State Training School	139	173

There are 1917 employees in the various institutions.

The growth of these institutions, according to the board's report, is already seriously taxing the physical capacity of several of the institutions, particularly the institution for the feeble-minded at Grafton, which has a large waiting list of applicants. Lack of facilities for treating incipient cases of tuberculosis among children at Dunsmuir is felt, and there is lack of proper facilities for taking care of girl inmates at the state training school at Mandan.

The total value of the property of the state in institutions, according to appraisal sheets as of May, 1924, is given as $11,049,264.34.

SMUGGLERS ARE ARRESTED

Roundup Make of Those Trying to Cross Line

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 26. —One alleged smuggler of aliens and nearly 50 aliens alleged to have been smuggled over the Canadian border have been rounded up in the Grand Forks district in the last six or seven days according to William Flinn, director of the district with offices here.

Seven of the arrests were made Monday night when the smuggler suspect and six companions declared to be aliens were captured north of here after they had crossed the line in an automobile, it is charged.

Border patrol forces in the Grand Forks district which includes the borders of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and part of Michigan nearly 1,200 miles of border line have been increased by the addition of 12 new agents in the last few days and more are to be added as soon as possible. The district force includes about 200 men.

There is an exceptionally large movement of aliens into the United States from Canada at this time, owing to the completion of the harvest and threshing season in the Dominion, according to immigration officials.

Recent arrests of aliens charged with unlawfully entering the country from Canada have brought a score or more suspects to jails of the district from Peabody, Neche and other border points in that section with an equal number being captured in the vicinity of Noyes. The aliens entering from these points have been in Winnipeg where they get in touch with smugglers and drive southward to the international boundary.

ARGENTINA WELCOMES EUROPEANS

Buenos Aires, Nov. 26. With the tide of European immigration setting toward South America, the Argentine government has taken steps to make some of its most desirable and still largely unutilized territory more easily available for colonization.

Under a bill now before Congress, large extensions of title lands, mostly held by wealthy individuals and located near railroad lines, would be expropriated and sold or leased to farmers in parcels.

The refusal to sell for many of these great land owners to sell their properties, or even a part of them, has long been cited as an obstacle to colonization and the economic growth of the country. Their policy has been to keep their estates intact and rent lands on a percentage basis of production, a system which has not proved attractive to the ambitious immigrant. Since the largest benefit goes to the land owner.

With an appropriation of $10,000,000 per annum, the bill would authorize the government to expropriate 50 percent of these title estates for colonization, the land owner having the privilege, however, of evading expropriation by assigning 50 percent of his property for

Educational, Charitable and Penal Institutions Have More People

The population of state institutions, penal, charitable and educational is steadily increasing. It is shown in figures compiled by the state board of administration. The "population" of these institutions, 15 in number, increased from 6,988 in June, 1922, to 8,397 in June, 1924. The increase necessitates both additional employees and more money to run them, it is pointed out. Comparative figures on the number of persons in these institutions are as follows:

Institution	June, 1922	June, 1924
University	1,858	2,253
Agricultural College	1,123	1,167
State Teachers College	756	882
Dickinson Normal	227	223
Minot Normal	231	428
Mayville Normal	179	284
Normal and Industrial
School at Ellendale	336	372
School of Science	67	117
School for Deaf	119	112
School for Blind	33	34
Hospital for Insane	1,252	1,307
Penitentiary	236	221
Institution for Feeble-Minded	331	424
Tuberculosis Sanatorium	101	100
State Training School	139	173

There are 1047 employees in the various institutions.

The growth of these institutions, according to the board's report, is already seriously taxing the physical capacity of several of the institutions, particularly the institution for the feeble-minded at Grafton, which has a large waiting list of applicants. Lack of facilities for treating incipient cases of tuberculosis among children at Dunseith is felt, and there is lack of proper facilities for taking care of girl inmates at the state training school at Mandan, the report says.

The total value of the property of the state in state institutions, according to appraisal sheets as of May, 1924, is given as $11,649,264.34.

THEIR THANKSGIVING

By Florence Horner

Grandmother Smith walked hurriedly toward the window.

"I am afraid we will have to eat our Thanksgiving dinner by our selves," she said. "It looks as though that note of the children was correct, and I cannot blame them. But just this once it will be the first Thanksgiving day we have spent alone in many a year."

It was one of those snowy, blustery days which visit our state so often in late November, and the heavy kitchen of the old farmhouse presented a great contrast to the scene outside. Outside it was cold and dreary, inside warm and comfortable. The fire in the stove crackled merrily, and an enticing aroma came from the oven as Grandmother looked after the huge turkey which had been roasted in the kitchen, but was now destined to serve a more useful purpose.

The clock on the mantel chimed ten, and still there was no sign of the children.

"It's too bad," said Grandmother Smith. "Here we have been planning on this Thanksgiving for weeks. And just how you and me are going to eat the turkey, pies, three cakes and the plum pudding on the shelves under the oven is a mystery to me."

"With all the children and the grandchildren here, I was thinking maybe we had ought to have killed a rooster or two to help out with the turkey, but as it is, I am glad we didn't."

"Grandfather rose from his place at the kitchen stove and laid a comforting hand on her shoulder. "Don't worry, Mother," he said. "The day is not over by any means, and I can never tell what may happen. And if the worst comes, and nobody shows up, think what a feast we will have too dry and days."

"Grandmother sighed. "I never did care for cold turkey," she said. "And you and me eat all those pies I can see where we both get indigestion from our old stomachs."

"But what can't be cured must be endured, I suppose, and we must be thankful for the turkey on the table set apart from all others to render our thanks. But it is too bad the storm had to come on this day of all others."

The old lady walked slowly to the window. "The weather is just what we need," she said. "An you see what kind of a contraption that is down the road anyway? I can't see very well without my glasses, but it actually looks like some kind of a gypsy outfit."

Grandfather Smith hastily adjusted his glasses and took his place by his wife. "No," he said. "It is no gypsy outfit, of that I am certain; but just what kind of a wagon it is I cannot say, or what it is doing out in this kind of weather. The vehicle in question was an overgrown bus of a brilliant yellow hue. Its gaudy sides bore flaming posters, and it appeared to have been stalled in a snowbank a short distance from the lane which led to the farmhouse."

"Look Father," exclaimed the old lady. "Isn't that some one coming down the road, or what is it?" Grandfather, looking in the direction she pointed and saw a traveler buffeted by the storm making his way toward the house. "Yes," he answered his wife's query. "Some poor traveler is coming here to get warm. I wouldn't doubt but that he is from that still-out of control in the town, and maybe is coming here for help."

"Poor fellow," said Grandmother. "He must be nearly frozen. I will set the coffee pot on the stove and have a hot drink ready by the time he gets here. It's awful to be caught out in such weather."

Suiting action to her word Grandmother bustled about and as a loud knock sounded in the door the boiling coffee sent out an aroma which must have been very appetizing to the wayfarer, who had battled his way over a half mile through the elements.

"Come right in," said Grandfather Smith hospitably. "Mother saw you coming and has a fine cup of coffee and a bit of food ready for you." Seating himself by the fire the stranger warmed his hands and after removing his coat and hat gratefully accepted the cup of steaming coffee.

"If I could seem free," he said, looking at Grandmother, and then at his wife, "I would like to stay here. I have been traveling for some time, and I am tired. I have a good deal of baggage, but I will leave it outside. I am sure you will not mind it."

The stranger was but a few years older than the old lady, and he was a well-dressed man. He had a high forehead, and his hair was graying. He had a kind, friendly face, and his eyes were blue. He was a man of about 40 years of age, and he was a well-dressed man. He had a high forehead, and his hair was graying. He had a kind, friendly face, and his eyes were blue. He was a man of about 40 years of age, and he was a well-dressed man.

The young fellow laughed. "That is the property of the department," he said, and he turned to the other equipment of their entertainment. "My name," he added, "is Harry Johnson, and I needn't say that I am a member of our company. My father, three brothers and a sister live in the wagon."

Grandmother gasped. "My goodness," she said, "you are sitting there and telling us your father is in the storm? Your father and brothers? The poor fellow must come here right away and we must take care of him. The young man smiled and looked at the speaker gratefully.

"Do not worry, my kind friend," he said. "Our wagon is fixed up almost as comfortably as you are here. We have a small heating stove and also a small bed and sleep right in the wagon. What brought me here was the fact that we have lost or mislaid our pump and have suffered a puncture in the rear by city visited time and if you ever get out this way again don't forget to visit us. "No need I will not exclaim but and thank you many times." Waving her handkerchief she hurried down the lane where her brothers and father were swiftly making their way toward the only home they knew. It was not long before a heavy "ding clang" told the old folks that their Thanksgiving guests were on their way. And as they gazed after the car until it had in the road hid from their sight both Grandfather Smith and his wife knew that by freely serving they had been richly rewarded.

The boys had brought out the old pump from its corner, and Dot seated himself before it. "While the boys and Father are getting ready I will play for you," she said.

A curtain composed of two sheets had been stretched across one end of the room and before this, the little audience sat. Dot played several popular airs on the piano and then thinking something more familiar might be appreciated she played some old time songs such as "Swing Nellie Home" and "Jingle Bells." Grandfather Smith said: "That tune takes me right back to the time we were out sleigh riding and I proposed to you, Mother." Yes, answered the old lady happily, and do you remember when I said "yes"? You dropped both lines and started into hugging me. Land sakes, she added, just think what would happen if we had been in an automobile at the time."

The "curtain" was pulled to one side and the performance began. Both old folks watched with big expressive eyes while the magical tricks so familiar to most of us were staged. Grandfather did feel some qualms when after Mr. Johnson had asked him for his watch and it had been handed to him he pounded it into a million pieces and seemingly melted them. But when the watch had been handed back safe and sound he could hardly believe it to be his own. And Grandmother was struck speechless to see what a variety of things had been hiding in her Sunday bonnet. A rag doll, handkerchief, ribbons and many other things appeared from it, and the old lady was beginning to wonder how on earth she had ever been able to get it on with all that stuff in it. But the climax came when reaching in Grandfather's pocket Frank Johnson brought forth a dog so small that you could almost put in a tin cup. "What a cute little fellow he is," exclaimed the old man. Well, having gotten him from your pocket, he said, he belonged to you said Frank. "No sir, answered Grandmother, I never saw him until this minute."

So the fun went on. Songs were sung by the singers in costumes. Jokes were sprung and stunts were pulled off until finally the show was over.

"Land sakes," said Grandmother Smith. "It is five o'clock, and as sure as anything, there is the sun peeping over the hill." While the show equipment was being gathered together Grandmother and Dot prepared lunch after which the visitors took their leave saying that they were billed for a show in the city that same evening.

"I will never forget you," said Dot kissing Grandmother on the cheek. "and I want you to know that this has been the happiest Thanksgiving I have had since my own dear mother died."

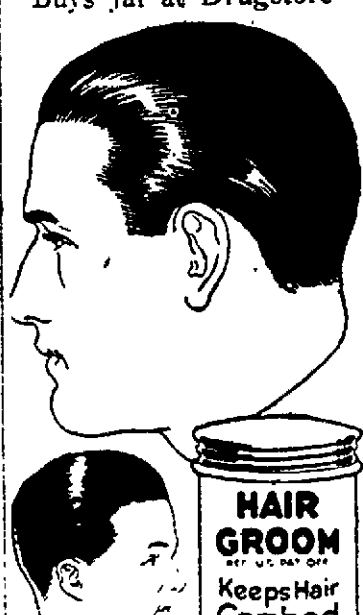

Grandmother wiped away a tear. "Well dearie, she said it has always seemed to me that whenever we help to make another life happier it comes back to us a thousand fold. Father and I have not enjoyed ourselves as we have today for a long time."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE

While much of the work of an Association of Commerce is intangible and indirect in results, every enterprising city needs such an agency through which civic action can function.

A new board of directors has been elected succeeding retiring members who piloted the organization through the period of reorganization and accomplished much of the platform adopted at a popular referendum of the members. Much of the success of the organization is due to the leadership of W. H. Webb, retiring president, and the excellent cooperation given him by the membership. He has devoted generously of his time to the interests of the city.

The new members elected through a most democratic form of balloting are representative of the membership and the business interests of the city and the Association is assured of an active and public spirited board of directors.

An Association of Commerce must be more than an office room and a secretary. The whole membership must pull in harmony for the development of the city. Chief effort should be directed toward the upbuilding of a well rounded community in which civic pride and honesty predominate. There must be no room for the self interested clique which seeks to prey upon the community for its own selfish ends. Every effort must be directed toward getting the best kind of city government at a cost commensurate with good service. It is a function of an Association of Commerce to see that such service is given for such an objective is not political but goes to the very heart of the essential things an Association of Commerce should carry on.

Bismarck as the Capital City has a great opportunity in cooperating with state officials in all movements looking forward to the upbuilding of the state. It is the function of an Association of Commerce to welcome incoming officials and make their stay here pleasant from a social standpoint, regardless of how divergent political ideas and convictions may be.

North Dakota is on the threshold of a great development and Bismarck can play an important part in directing such a movement, if it rivets attention upon essentials. More people are needed upon the acres tributary to Bismarck. Our corn show must be developed into an agricultural exposition of dimensions that will reflect the great resources of the state. North Dakota needs more faith in itself and gumption to go ahead along conservative lines forsaking all economic fallacies and holding fast to those cardinal virtues that reared here a great commonwealth before present day governmental vagaries were heard of.

Bismarck through its Association of Commerce can accomplish much along these lines. It has the endorsement of a great majority of the business interests of the city and The Tribune knows it voices the well wishes of Bismarck toward the new board of directors when it wishes them success in the tasks that are ahead.

HORN OF PLENTY

Red Letter Days like Thanksgiving may lose some of their thrill and glamor as we grow older. But it's comfort to know that there's always a rising generation to whom Thanksgiving is an event of importance not far behind Santa Claus.

Originally when the pioneers were wearing knee breeches and shooting turkeys with blunderbusses, Thanksgiving was a solemn occasion—a day for thanks that Providence had blessed with abundant crops to preserve them from starvation.

No longer are people grateful for necessities. Thanks are raised only if the horn of plenty disgorges luxuries. One reason is that, while we have business depressions, we no longer have, for contrast, hard times as they thought of hard times in 1873.

The pinch is not as tight, even at its worst. Largely it's a matter of thoughtlessness. If we pause to ponder our material prosperity, unprecedented in any other country or any previous civilization in mankind's long history, we realize that we have reasons galore for thanks. If the early pioneers had had our brand of prosperity, our standard of living, they'd have thought they were passed on to the Promised Land.

America as we have it was born of hardship and human sacrifices. Bring on the turkey—or must it be a bird of paradise before we admit gratitude?

SALVAGE

Synthetic lumber, now being manufactured from such substances as the waste fiber of sugar cane, will eventually take the place of forest grown lumber. So claims Dahlberg, one of its enthusiasts.

Maybe he's a bit too zealous. But we are entering a period when the greatest fortunes and progress will be made through economics, especially salvage of waste. Chemistry will make the transition from our era of "mining natural resources."

PRICES

Prices are rising again, all over the world. In England the average of wholesale prices is 12 per cent higher than a year ago. So on, in various countries. It means higher cost of living for the world's people. But it also means increased income for them—and easier payments of war debts. Low cost of living and prosperity have been divorced.

RUBBER

Only a few generations back, people were laughing at Goodyear who was toiling, his teeth set against ridicule, to make a useful substance out of sticky rubber.

Census shows the rubber industry in America last year had an output valued at nearly 954 million dollars. Old Goodyear certainly would have a good laugh if he were alive today.

The airplane enthusiasts, now smiled at, will laugh later.

AGRICULTURAL CENSUS IN NORTH DAKOTA

(Jamestown Alert)

Congress, authorized, each five years, a census of agriculture, and this will be started in North Dakota December 1, covering the crop year of 1924. Work is to be completed by February 1. Throughout the country, the work will be continued by enumerators and supervisors mostly selected from the Bureau of Census, and the Department of Agriculture.

North Dakota is divided into five districts and the supervisors have been selected for this work. Stutsman county is included in districts Nos. 3 and 5, with a supervisor, H. O. Herbrandson, stationed at Grand Forks. There will be 132 enumerators in districts No. 3 and 5, which embrace, according to the census of 1920, 30,426 farms, in 19 counties.

Questionnaires are being widely distributed to farmers in advance of the visits of the enumerators. Special information will be secured in addition to the usual questions. The amount of taxes paid, and the special assessments are desired. The burden of taxation upon each farm is an important matter, and how it compares with the amount of taxes paid by other interests. This has a direct reference to future settlement and future land values in the state.

This five year census will include farm population only. The services of cooperative selling organizations, and the value of farm supplies purchased from farmers organizations, the kind of roads adjoining the farm; distance to the nearest market town, and other inquiries to ascertain conditions on which the success of farm operation depends will be asked.

This census will be quickly reduced to condensed statements, and the information obtained made public in the near future. It will have a far reaching effect in business circles of the country, dependent upon agriculture and the prospective purchasing power of the farmer.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

WOODENHEAD

"Some say that I run up, Or else that I run down, Which mixes me most dreadfully, For anyone with eyes can see, I couldn't move for the life of me, If the house was burning down."

"I haven't feather or wing, Though some say I'm a flight! It's the silliest talk I've ever heard, I'm no relation to a bird, Or an airplane either, on my word, I'm nailed down fast and tight."

"They talk about my head, They speak about my foot, Which puzzles me more each single day, And I wonder why they talk that way, If I've the things that people say, I know not where they're put."

"Sometimes I'm one or ten, But they speak of me in pairs, When I'm not scissors, I am not twins, Or fancy ear-rings, or gold cuff-pins! Now try to be careful—watch out for your shins, As you chase down, or race down the—"

"That was the next riddle the Riddle Lady asked. 'Will you please to say it all over again?' asked Slow. 'I couldn't quite catch it. I'm all mixed up.' 'That's what the—' There!" said the Riddle Lady. "I nearly gave it away. Yes, I'll say it over again very slowly. Now listen, everybody, and think as hard as you can because it's a hard riddle."

Goosey Gander came crowding in just then and when the Riddle Lady had finished he laughed and laughed. I mean he honked and honked. "Oh, I know that one!" he said. "It's simply too easy. Ha! Ha! Ha! Why, I wouldn't even bother telling you what it is. But speaking of shins, did you know that the Old-Man-Who-Wouldn't-Say-His-Prayers got hurt very much when he—"

"Oh, do hush, and run away and don't talk so much, please," begged the Riddle Lady. "Why, the ideal!" cried Goosey Gander. "I never was so insulted in all my life!"

And he went away wagging his tail like the rudder of a flying machine or pro-peller or whatever it is that makes it go.

Down Pippin Hill he went honking about his feelings until his voice got fainter and fainter in the distance and finally died away altogether.

"Now we can have some peace," said Slow slowly. "Mrs. Riddle Lady, would you mind saying it all over again. I don't remember much about it."

"I've guessed the answer," cried Nimble Jack. "It's a pair of stairs. No danger of my shins getting hurt. I take them always in one jump."

"I went up one pair of stairs," began Nancy. "Just like me," said Jill. "Oh, don't begin that," said Nick. "We want to hear more."

Is This Your Birthday

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 26—Persons born this day quite often cause their own lives to be shortened by over-exertion.

Even though you have much ability, it will gain you nothing unless you keep a healthy mind housed in a healthy body. More recreation should be taken by those who find their daily tasks becoming heavy.

Travel would bring out in you a desire to write and the stars destined that persons born this day can create great literary ability.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN

PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON
My Dear Syd: I can't tell you how disappointed I was when I received your wire. You know I really expected to find you here when I arrived, but if you are coming in the last of the week, as you promised, I'll forgive you this time.

You didn't say what was detaining you. I hope it is business and not illness. You didn't look very well the last time I saw you.

Enclosed in this you will find a letter from Paula Perier. That girl is the most surprising piece of the female species I have ever encountered. Do you really think she meant what she said or was she only bluffing when she dared me to show the letter I was sending you to Leslie. She seems to have transferred all the affection she ever had for me to my wife. Now isn't that a situation for your life!

Some of these funny men who are always cartooning and joking about "How these women love each other" should read that sentence in Paula's letter where she says of Leslie, "It is not to you, John Prescott, that I owe my belief in a God and a feeling that somewhere, some time, some way everything will all be right, but to your wife."

Syd, I think that next to Leslie, Paula is the best woman I have ever known. Does that sound strange? She is a much better woman than I am a man. Her only folly as far as I have seen in the years I have known her is that she allowed herself to love such a good-for-nothing fellow as I am.

You know, old chap, that no one in the world knows my shortcomings as well as I do myself. I know them all and I never lie to myself about them. I never lie to you about them and today I have written to Leslie and made a clean breast of them. I am never able to talk about my shortcomings to Leslie, however. I always get angry—not so much at her as at myself—but it comes to the same thing, it hurts her. I think, however, I must also have some good points, for otherwise two such women as Leslie and Paula would not have loved me, and such a splendid old dear as you would not be my friend through thick and thin.

You called the turn, Syd, when you said that probably Paula would take back her offer of half her salary for little Jack, although I think now she has a very good excuse for not doing so. Her best bet is to forget him as well as me.

Did you ever know anyone that had changed as much as Paula? From being a fun-loving, irresponsible little minx, she has become a splendid, serious woman. She seems to have found herself.

I did not write to you much about Alice for I thought I would see you soon and then I could tell you all about her. Honestly, Syd, I think she is going crazy. I wonder just what it is that pushes the brain from sanity over the border-line to that place where madness lies. Really and truly, while I was angry enough at Alice to shake her when she objected so outrageously to her father's will, I could not help but find her exceedingly interesting.

She was really a new kind of human being to me. I have thought of her and her moods many times since. I am exceedingly sorry for Karl Whitney. Having known and loved Leslie, to have had such a terrible thing happen to him as to have married Alice, is something that I am sure he does not deserve.

GAMBLING AT CARDS

By Albert Apple

The mah jongg craze is beginning to wane. It still has millions of enthusiasts. And it will be popular for years. But cards are coming into their own again.

This runs true to history. Thousands upon thousands of gambling games have been invented. But invariably man goes back to "the greasy pasteboards."

When people play cards, they are handling a gambling device so many thousands of years old that the origin is lost in the mists of antiquity.

The very ancient Hindus had a game called "Chaturaji"—which, many experts believe, was the origin of playing cards. "Chaturaji" (the name of "four rajahs or kings") was really highly complicated chess.

Life to the ancients was a lottery. They symbolized this belief in the four divisions of cards—hearts for love out of which life is born, clubs for knowledge, diamonds for wealth and the acorn or spade for death.

In the Middle Ages, card games took clearer shape. Hearts came to represent bravery. Spades represented swords. Diamonds signified shields. Clubs were symbolic of army provisions. It was a military age, and cards became games of war.

The four kings stood for the famous champions of long ago—David, Alexander, Julius Caesar and Charlemagne.

The four queens represented Argine, Pallas, Esther and Judith—who were, respectively, symbolic of majesty, wisdom, piety and fortitude. In some decks of cards, with a little imagination, you can discern these qualities in the facial expressions of the grotesque ladies.

The four knaves represented the gallant captains, Ogier, Launcelot, Lahire and Hector de Gallard.

But if you ask a Chinaman, he will tell you that his race invented cards thousands of years before these celebrated personages were born. To a Chinaman, cards represent the stars, the human virtues and, in their various combinations, about everything under the sun.

It's the oldest game, and it will be played when mah jongg and even baseball are gone and forgotten.

New York

Here's the Fifth Avenue bus of 30 years ago. It was drawn by three horses and the very elite of the town were its patrons. Now one may see lines of fast motor busses a block long. They are a big factor in New York's transit problem.

New York, Nov. 26.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Eddie Cantor, passing like a dark shadow. Some day I'll get personal and ask him how much he weighs.....

Saw Joe Cook, the pride of Evansville, talking to a fellow from the old home town. And in conversation he talks just about as fast as he does on the stage.....

Saw Sam Scribner, entrepreneur of "clean burlesque" and a powerful man he looks. He once was a blacksmith's apprentice in Brookline, Pa., also a taxi player in the band.....

Saw George Gershwin, who methinks, is one of the greatest living pianists, even though he is a devotee of jazz.....

Greenwich Village rapidly is becoming passe, now that bobbed hair, equality of sexes, self-determination and other such subjects have become common property of the nation. No new fad has been found to make Greenwich Village distinctive within itself.

However, the many little oddities which originated in New York's Bohemia have left their effect on other sections of the city. This is particularly true of restaurants.

Every section of the city, uptown and downtown, Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn and even Staten Island, are dotted with little eating places that have no table-cloths but plenty of atmosphere. They all stress individuality and low price.

One restaurant near the Pennsylvania Station thus blurs itself: "A quaint place, a comfortable place, an unusual place, a quiet place, a clean wholesome place, a distinctly different place." Furthermore it proclaims that exacting people may come there with anybody or alone and enjoy "the personal touch of a master cook." This place charges only 55 cents for lunch.

On Eighth avenue in the Thirties one may see almost any day, drug addicts waiting for their peddlers. Thin, worried and pale, they stand sometimes for hours while the peddler eludes the police. Most of them are ragged, but occasionally you may see a prosperous looking individual pathetically huddled with the down-and-outers to participate in his newfound course.

FABLES ON HEALTH

DIET FOR THE BABY

Diet for baby? A much asked question and one that has an answer dependent largely upon the child.

But if the baby is normal, this diet applied in the second year has been found by health experts to produce robust, healthy lads and lassies: For breakfast feed the child from three to four big spoonfuls of well-cooked cereal. Put emphasis on the "well-cooked." One glass of milk, a slice of bread that is a day old.

About 10 or 11 in the morning serve a luncheon which consists of fruit juice, either orange or prune pulp or apple sauce.

Then, from 12 to 1, have lunch. A cereal again may be served, or some broth with cereal in it or potato soup. After the fourteenth month eggs may be fed the child, a cup of milk, a slice of slightly stale bread and a well-strained vegetable.

A glass of milk and bread at 3:30 and a light supper of cereal, milk and fruit.

CITY NEWS

AT THE CAPITOL

Variety is the spice of life, and it is also the secret of success in making good motion pictures. Many stars fall into a rut because they insist upon making the same line of pictures and using the same kind of characterization. They never change because they feel the public is used to seeing them in a certain type of picture.

Such is not the case, however, with Harold Lloyd, whose latest feature Pathé-comedy, "Girl Shy," will be seen this week at the Capitol theatre. Harold has fortunately discovered that "mixing them up a bit" is the secret of success. He has never made two comedies even remotely alike, considering his big hits, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Why Worry?" and now "Girl Shy." He has jumped from small town situations to a South American revolution, from portraying a doctor to a ribbon clerk. Now in his latest, he has again striven for something different from anything he has ever made. He is seen in "Girl Shy" in an entirely novel characterization, as a bashful small town boy who is an apprentice to his uncle, a tailor.

He makes a secret study of girls, although not a very accurate one, and the more he studies them, the more he fears them. He has tried in "Girl Shy" to present a character who will instantly win the sympathy of his audience through his humanness. A really dramatic story has been built around this central figure of the boy and nothing has been sacrificed to make the picture true to life in every small detail. And it is attention to detail that helps largely to make the Lloyd Pathé comedies the big hits that they are.

The "Girl Shy" includes Johnny Ralston, who plays opposite Lloyd. She made a big hit in her initial appearance with the comedian in "Why Worry?" which resulted in her being signed by Lloyd to a long term contract. Her excellent work in "Girl Shy" is said to be one of the contributing factors in its success. Others in the cast are Richard Daniels, who plays the role of Lloyd's uncle in the film and Carlton Griffin, playing the part of a wealthy young lady. Fred Newmeyer, who played "Why Worry?" also wielded the megaphone on this new mirth provoker, which was taken from a story by Taylor, Ted Wilde and Tim Whelan.

THE ELTINGE

From gingham to gorgeous gowns, from a dingy boarding house on the Brooklyn waterfront to a palatial villa on Lake Como, Italy, and how you'll love Bebe as pretty Adele Clark.

"Dangerous Money" brings it all to the screen at the Eltinge Theatre Thursday. The picture is an adaptation by Julie Herne of the popular novel, "Clark's Field." It tells of a poor, though unusually pretty young girl, who opens her eyes one morning to find herself heiress to more money than she ever even dared believe there was in the entire world. Bebe does the natural thing—gets away from the boarding house and everything connected with it as quickly as possible, outfits herself in raiment befitting a queen and hies herself abroad to acquire that "Old World culture."

But what becomes of romance in the meantime? It has just begun, thinks Bebe, for money can buy anything—even love and happiness. But that's where she was wrong, for her little girlhood romance was almost finished and when she realized it, the picture shows it all in a delightfully entertaining manner—and we wouldn't want to spoil your evening's entertainment for the world.

Mr. Power was also considered as a prospect for appointment to the position of head of the Minneapolis Federal Reserve Bank, following the death of John Rich, being closely connected with several of the prominent advisers of President Coolidge.

DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES IS HELD NEED

University, N. D., Nov. 26. What North Dakota needs is the development of her resources to put her again on her feet and not the false economy of seriously cutting expenditures for education, Governor-elect A. G. Sorlie declared in addressing a convocation of all university students and faculty members in the campus armory building.

"I was greatly relieved upon learning of the defeat of the Gundersen bill," Mr. Sorlie said, "for it is no place to begin economy by crippling the educational institutions of the state. North Dakota is a great state and by building up a faith in the state and by developing her resources can North Dakota take her rightful place in the minds of her citizenry and citizens of other states."

Mr. Sorlie spoke at this time as a member of the state budget board, which is visiting the campus at this time in company with the state board of administration. Other members of the budget board spoke and also members of the board of administration.

President Kane spoke briefly concerning the university enrollment, and Reginald Smart, of Minot, represented the senior class in a short talk of welcome to the board members.

CITY NEWS

AT THE CAPITOL
Variety is the spice of life, and it is also the secret of success in making good motion pictures. Many stars fall into a rut because they insist upon making the same line of pictures and using the same kinds of characterizations. They never change because they feel the public is used to seeing them in a certain type of picture.

Such is not the case, however, with Harold Lloyd, whose latest feature Pathé-comedy, "Girl Shy," will be seen this week at the Capitol theatre. Harold has fortunately discovered that "mixing them up a bit" is the secret of success. He has never made two comedies even remotely alike, considering his big hits, "Dr. Jack," "Safety Last," "Why Worry?" and now "Girl Shy." He has jumped from small town situations to a South American revolution, from portraying a doctor to a ribbon clerk. Now in his latest, he has again striven for something different from anything he has ever made. He is seen in "Girl Shy" in an entirely novel characterization, as a bashful small town boy who is an apprentice to his uncle, a tailor. He makes a secret study of girls, although not a very accurate one, and the more he studies them, the more he fears them.

He has tried in "Girl Shy" to present a character who will instantly win the sympathy of his audience through his humanness. A really dramatic story has been built around this central figure of the boy and nothing has been sacrificed to make the picture true to life in every small detail. And it is attention to detail that helps largely to make the Lloyd Lloyd comedies the big hits that they are.

The cast of "Girl Shy" includes Jobyna Ralston, who plays opposite Lloyd. She made a big hit in her initial appearance with the comedy in "Why Worry?" which resulted in her being signed by Lloyd to a long term contract. Her excellent work in "Girl Shy" is said to be one of the contributing factors in its success. Others in the cast are Richard Daniels, who plays the role of Lloyd's uncle in the film, and Carlton Griffin, playing the part of a wealthy young idler. Fred Newman and Sam Taylor, who co-directed "Why Worry?" also wielded the megaphone on this new north provoker, which was taken from a story by Taylor, Ted Wilde and Tim Whelan.

THE ELTINGE
From gingham to gorgeous gowns, from a dingy boarding house on the Brooklyn waterfront to a palatial villa on Lake Como, Italy—and how you'll love Bebe as pretty Adele Clark!

"Dangerous Money" brings it all to the screen at the Eltinge Theatre Thursday. The picture is an adaptation by Julie Herne of the popular novel, "Clark's Field." It tells of a poor, though unusually pretty young girl, who opens her eyes one morning to find herself heiress to more money than she ever even dared believe there was in the entire world. Bebe does the natural thing—gets away from the boarding house and everything connected with it as quickly as possible, outfits herself in raiment befitting a queen and hies herself abroad to acquire that "Old World culture."

But what becomes of romance in the meantime? It has just begun, thinks Bebe, for money can buy anything—even love and happiness. But that's where she was wrong, for her little girlhood romance was almost "finished" and when she realizes it—the picture shows it all in a delightfully entertaining manner—and we wouldn't want to spoil your evening's entertainment for the world.

"JOHNNIE'S THANKSGIVING PLAIN"

By Julia C. Moffit
The crust is on the pumpkin pie And corn is in a pan close by. The cellar shelves are groaning; my! Under stacks of goodies piled so high. Ma is stuffing turkey—Pa is shelling nuts, Sis is picking cranberries—I watch a lot, When Ma ain't looking, Pa eats like a bird. Seems' makes no difference, me watching him.

When Pa ain't looking the raisins just fly— Into my mouth; and bye and bye I'm caught by Ma and then sent out. To feed old Red in the old pig lot.

I told Ma I was hungry for turkey and pie; She looked at me and then her eye Rested on a castor oil bottle close by— "Such stuff to give boys after turkey and pie."

But then all those good things are worth it; Who knows—I would have to hold my nose. Shut my eyes real tight and say— "Here goes—Ma's castor oil bottle and Johnnie's woes."

DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES IS HELD NEED

University, N. D., Nov. 26.—What North Dakota needs is the development of her resources to put her again on her feet and not the false economy of seriously cutting expenditures for education, Governor-elect A. G. Sorlie declared in addressing a convocation of all university students and faculty members in the campus armory building. "I was greatly relieved upon learning of the defeat of the Gundersen bill," Mr. Sorlie said, "for it is no place to begin economy by crippling the educational institutions of the state. North Dakota is a great state and by building up a faith in the state and by developing her resources, North Dakota take her rightful place in the mind of her citizenry and citizens of other states."

Mr. Sorlie spoke at this time as a member of the state budget board, which is visiting the campus at this time in company with the state board of administration. Other members of the budget board spoke and also members of the board of administration.

President Kane spoke briefly concerning the university enrollment, and Reginald Smart, of Minot, represented the senior class in a short talk of welcome to the board members.

BANKER AND FARMER

Fargo, Nov. 26.—J. A. Power, of Leonard, North Dakota, former member of the North Dakota Board of Regents, died in a Fargo hospital at noon. He underwent an operation for a stomach ailment a week ago. Mr. Power was prominently known in North Dakota. He was a member of the board of regents several years ago, serving for sometime and he was a candidate for delegate to the Republican national election in the election of last March. He also was considered as a prospect for appointment to the position of head of the Minneapolis Federal Reserve Bank, following the death of John Rich, being closely connected with several of the prominent advisers of President Coolidge.

Mr. Power in his farm work and in his business apart from farming had taken a keen interest in the development of farm life and the Barrie Men's club, an active organization in his home state stands as a monument to him, its work in the promotion of community and neighborhood life being one of the most successful undertakings of its kind in the state.

Mr. Power was born in St. Paul 53 years ago, his father being Joseph Power who came into North Dakota in the early days. He was land commissioner for the Northern Pacific railroad and it was while in that capacity that the elder Power selected the farm lands that "Alien" Power, as he was widely known, had made his home ever since, coming to this state and which he has operated since the death of his father. The elder Power also was president of

University of North Dakota Dean Speaks on Work at The University

The guests at the Rotary luncheon this noon included F. J. Hardy, Dean Vernon Squires of the University of North Dakota, J. C. Gould, Rotarian and Superintendent of Schools at Mandan, C. E. Taylor of Warren, Ill., E. P. Minick of the Armour Co., Roy Baird, Rotarian of Dickinson, Jason E. Wait, and Mrs. Henry Dunceland who kindly officiated at the piano. THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE

While much of the work of an Association of Commerce is intangible and indirect in results, every enterprising city needs such an agency through which civic action can function.

A new board of directors has been elected succeeding retiring members who piloted the organization through the period of reorganization and accomplished much of the reform adopted at a popular referendum of the members. Much of the success of the organization is due to the leadership of W. H. Webb, retiring president, and the excellent cooperation given him by the membership. He has devoted generously of his time to the interests of the city.

The new members elected through a most democratic form of balloting are representative of the membership and the business interests of the city and the Association is assured of an active and public spirited board of directors.

An Association of Commerce must be more than an office room and a secretary. The whole membership must pull in harmony for the development of the city. Chief effort should be directed toward the upbuilding of a well rounded community in which civic pride and honesty predominate. There must be no room for the self interested clique which seeks to prey upon the community for its own selfish ends. Every effort must be directed toward getting the best kind of city government at a cost commensurate with good service. It is a function of an Association of Commerce to see that such service is given for such an objective is not political but goes to the very heart of the essential things an Association of Commerce should carry on.

Bismarck as the Capital City has a great opportunity in cooperating with state officials in all movements looking forward to the upbuilding of the state. It is the function of an Association of Commerce to welcome incoming officials and make their stay here pleasant from a social standpoint, regardless of how divergent political ideas and convictions may be.

North Dakota is on the threshold of a great development and Bismarck can play an important part in directing such a movement, if it rivets attention upon essentials. More people are needed upon the acres tributary to Bismarck. Our corn show must be developed into an agricultural exposition of dimensions that will reflect the great resources of the state. North Dakota needs more faith in itself and gumption to go ahead along conservative lines forsaking all economic fallacies and holding fast to those cardinal virtues that reared here a great commonwealth before present day governmental vagaries were heard of.

Bismarck through its Association of Commerce can accomplish much along these lines. It has the endorsement of a great majority of the business interests of the city and The Tribune knows it voices the well wishes of Bismarck toward the new board of directors when it wishes them success in the tasks that are ahead.

HORN OF PLENTY

Red Letter Days like Thanksgiving may lose some of their thrill and glamor as we grow older. But it's comfort to know that there's always a rising generation to whom Thanksgiving is an event of importance not far behind Santa Claus.

Originally when the pioneers were wearing knee breeches and shooting turkeys with blunderbusses, Thanksgiving was a solemn occasion—a day for thanks that Providence had blessed with abundant crops to preserve them from starvation.

No longer are people grateful for necessities. Thanks are raised only if the horn of plenty disgorges luxuries. One reason is that, while we have business depressions, we no longer have, for contrast, hard times as they thought of hard times in 1873.

The pinch is not as tight, even at its worst.

Largely it's a matter of thoughtlessness. If we pause to ponder our material prosperity, unprecedented in any other country or any previous civilization in mankind's long history, we realize that we have reasons galore for thanks. If the early pioneers had had our brand of prosperity, our standard of living, they'd have thought they were passed on to the Promised Land.

America as we have it was born of hardship and human sacrifices. Bring on the turkey—or must it be a bird of paradise before we admit gratitude?

SALVAGE

Synthetic lumber, now being manufactured from such substances as the waste fiber of sugar cane, will eventually take the place of forest grown lumber. So claims Dahlberg, one of its enthusiasts.

Maybe he's a bit too zealous. But we are entering a period when the greatest fortunes and progress will be made through economics, especially salvage of waste. Chemistry will make the transition from our era of "mining natural resources."

PRICES

Prices are rising again, all over the world. In England the average of wholesale prices is 12 per cent higher than a year ago. So on, in various countries. It means higher cost of living for the world's people. But it also means increased income for them—and easier payments of war debts. Low cost of living and prosperity have been divorced.

RUBBER

Only a few generations back, people were laughing at Goodyear who was toiling, his teeth set against ridicule, to make a useful substance out of sticky rubber.

Census shows the rubber industry in America last year had an output valued at nearly 954 million dollars. Old Goodyear certainly would have a good laugh if he were alive today.

The airplane enthusiasts, now smiled at, will laugh later.

AGRICULTURAL CENSUS IN NORTH DAKOTA

(Lamontown Alert)
Congress authorized, each five years, a census of agriculture, and this will be started in North Dakota December 1, covering the crop year of 1924. Work is to be completed by February 1. Throughout the country, the work will be continued by enumerators and supervisors mostly selected from the Bureau of Census, and the Department of Agriculture.

North Dakota is divided into five districts and the supervisors have been selected for this work. Statistics are included in districts No. 3 and 4, with a supervisor, H. O. Herbrandson, stationed at Grand Forks. There will be 133 enumerators in districts No. 3 and 4, which embrace, according to the census of 1920, 30,426 farms, in 19 counties.

Questionnaires are being widely distributed to farmers in advance of the visit of the enumerators. Special information will be secured in addition to the usual questions. The amount of taxes paid, and the special assessments are desired. The burden of taxation upon each farm is an important matter, and how it compares with the amount of taxes paid by other interests. This has a direct reference to future settlement and future land values in the state.

This five year census will include farm population only. The services of cooperative selling organizations, and the value of farm supplies purchased from farmers organizations, the kind of roads adjoining the farm; distance to the nearest market town, and other inquiries to ascertain conditions, on which the success of farm operation depends, will be asked. This census will be quickly reduced to condensed statements, and the information obtained made public in the near future. It will have a far reaching effect in business circles of the country, dependent upon agriculture and the prospective purchasing power of the farmer.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

Or else that I run down,
Which mixes me most dreadfully,
For anyone with eyes can see,

Though some say I'm a flight!
It's the silliest talk I've ever heard,

That was the next riddle the Riddle Lady asked.
"Will you please to say it all over again?" asked Slow. "I couldn't quite catch it. I'm all mixed up."

"That's what the — There!" said the Riddle Lady. "I nearly gave it away. Yes, I'll say it over again over slowly. Now listen, everybody, and think as hard as you can because it's a hard riddle."

Goosey Gander came crowding in just then and when the Riddle Lady had finished he laughed and laughed. I mean he honked and honked. "Oh, I know that one!" he said. "It's simply too easy. Ha! Ha! Ha! Why, I wouldn't even bother telling you what it is. But speaking of things, did you know that the Old-Man-Who-Wouldn't-Say-His-Prayer, got hurt very much when he —"

"Oh, do hush and run away and don't talk much, please," begged the Riddle Lady.
"Why, the idea!" cried Goosey Gander. "I never was so insulted in all my life!"

And he went away wagging his tail like the rudder of a flying machine or propeller or whatever it is that makes it fly.

Down Pippin Hill he went honking about his feelings until his voice got fainter and fainter in the distance, and finally died away altogether.

"Now we can have some peace," said Slow slowly. "Mrs. Riddle Lady, would you mind saying it all over again. I don't remember much about it."

"I've guessed the answer," cried Nimble Jack. "It's a pair of stairs. No danger of my shins getting hurt. I take them always in one jump."

"I went up one pair of stairs," began Nanny.

"Just like me," said Jill.

"Oh, don't begin that," said Nick. "We want to hear more."

Is This Your Birthday

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 26.—Persons born this day quite often cause their own lives to be shortened by over-exertion.

Even though you have much ability, it will gain you nothing unless you keep a healthy mind housed in a healthy body. More recreation should be taken by those who find their daily tasks becoming heavy.

Travel would bring out in you a desire to write and the stars destined that persons born this day can create great literary ability.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON

My Dear Syd: I can't tell you how disappointed I was when I received your wire. You know I really expected to find you here when I arrived, but if you are coming in the first of the week, as you promised, I'll forgive you this time.

You don't say what was detaining you. I hope it is business and not illness. You didn't look very well the last time I saw you.

Enclosed in this you will find a letter from Paula Perier. That girl is the most surprising piece of the female species I have ever encountered. Do you really think she meant what she said or was she only bluffing when she dared me to show the letter I was sending you to Leslie. She seems to have transferred all the affection she ever had for me to my wife. Now isn't that a situation for your life!

Some of those funny men who are always cartooning and joking about "How these women love each other" should read that sentence in Paula's letter where she says of Leslie: "It is not to you, John Prescott, that I owe my belief in a God and a feeling that somewhere, some time, some way everything will all be right, but to your wife."

Syd, I think that next to Leslie, Paula is the best woman I have ever known. Does that sound strange? She is a much better woman than I am. Her only folly as far as I have seen in the years I have known her is that she allowed herself to love such a good-for-nothing fellow as I am.

You know, old chap, that no one in the world knows my shortcomings as well as I do myself. I know them all and I never lie to myself about them. I never lie to you about them and today I have written to Leslie and made a clean breast of them. I am never able to talk about my shortcomings to Leslie, however. She gets angry—not so much at her as at myself—but it comes to the same thing, it hurts her. I think, however, I must also have some good points, for otherwise two such women as Leslie and Paula would not have loved me, and such a splendid old dear as you would not be my friend through thick and thin.

You called the turn, Syd, when you said that probably Paula would take back her offer of half her salary for little Jack, although I think now she has a very good excuse for not doing so. Her best bet is to forget him as well as me.

Did you ever know anyone that had changed as much as Paula? From being a fun-loving, irresponsible little minx, she has become a splendid, serious woman. She seems to have found herself.

I did not write to you much about Alice for I thought I would see you soon and then I could tell you all about her. Honestly, Syd, I think she is going crazy. I wonder just what it is that pushes the brain from sanity over the border-line to that place where madness lies. Really and truly, while I was angry enough at Alice to shake her when she objected so outrageously to her father's will, I could not help but find her exceedingly interesting.

She was really a new kind of human being to me. I have thought of her and her moods many times since. I am exceedingly sorry for Karl Whitney. Having known and loved Leslie, to have had such a terrible thing happen to him as to have married Alice, is something that I am sure he does not deserve.

GAMBLING AT CARDS

By Albert Apple

The mah jongg craze is beginning to wane. It still has millions of enthusiasts. And it will be popular for years. But cards are coming into their own again.

This runs true to history. Thousands upon thousands of gambling games have been invented. But invariably man goes back to "the greasy pasteboards."

When people play cards, they are handling a gambling device so many thousands of years old that the origin is lost in the mists of antiquity.

The very ancient Hindus had a game called "Chaturaji"—which, many experts believe, was the origin of playing cards. "Chaturaji" (the name of "four rajahs or kings") was really highly complicated chess.

Life to the ancients was a lottery. They symbolized this belief in the four divisions of cards—hearts for love out of which life is born, clubs for knowledge, diamonds for wealth and the acorn or spade for death.

In the Middle Ages, card games took clearer shape. Hearts came to represent bravery. Spades represented swords. Diamonds signified shields. Clubs were symbolic of army provisions. It was a military age, and cards became games of war.

The four kings stood for the famous champions of long ago—David, Alexander, Julius Caesar and Charlemagne.

The four queens represented Argine, Pallas, Esther and Judith—who were, respectively, symbolic of majesty, wisdom, piety and fortitude. In some decks of cards, with a little imagination, you can discern these qualities in the facial expressions of the grotesque ladies.

The four knaves represented the gallant captains, Ogier, Launcelot, Lahire and Hector de Gallard.

But if you ask a Chinaman, he will tell you that his race invented cards thousands of years before these celebrated personages were born. To a Chinaman, cards represent the stars, the human virtues and, in their various combinations, about everything under the sun.

It's the oldest game, and it will be played when mah jongg and even baseball are gone and forgotten.

Here's the Fifth Avenue bus of 30 years ago. It was drawn by three horses and the very elite of the town were its patrons. Now one may see lines of fast motor busses a block long. They are a big factor in New York's transit problem.

New York, Nov. 26.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Eddie Carter, passing like a dark shadow. Some day I'll get personal and ask him how much he weighs.....

Saw Joe Cook, the pride of Evansville, talking to a fellow from the old home town. And in conversation he talks just about as fast as he does on the stage.....

Saw Sam Scribner, entrepreneur of "clean burlesque" and a powerful man he looks. He once was a blacksmith's apprentice in Brooklyn, Pa., also a tuba player in the band.

Saw George Gershwin, who methinks, is one of the greatest living pianists, even though he is a devotee of jazz.....

Greenwich Village rapidly is becoming passé, now that bobbed hair, equality of sexes, self-determination and other such subjects have become common property of the nation. No new fad has been found to make Greenwich Village distinctive within itself.

On Eighth avenue in the Thirties one may see almost any day, drug addicts, waiting for their peddle. Thin, worried and pale they stand sometimes for hours while the peddler eludes the police. Most of them are ragged, but occasionally you may see a prosperous looking individual pathetically huddled with the down-and-outers to participate in his new-found course.

FABLES ON HEALTH

DIET FOR THE BABY

Diet for baby? A much asked question and one that has an answer dependent largely upon the child.

But if the baby is normal, this diet applied in the second year has been found by health experts to produce robust, healthy kids and inmates.

For breakfast give the child from three to four big spoonfuls of well-cooked cereal. Put emphasis on the "well-cooked." One glass of milk, a slice of bread that is a day old.

About 10 or 11 in the morning serve a luncheon which consists of fruit juice, either orange or prune pulp or apple sauce.

Then, from 12 to 1, have lunch. A cereal again may be served, or some broth with cereal in it or potato soup. After the fourteenth month eggs may be fed the child, a cup of milk, a slice of slightly stale bread and a well-strained vegetable.

A glass of milk and bread at 3:30 and a light supper of cereal, milk and fruit.

GRID RECEIPTS MAKE RECORD

Half Million Dollars Taken in
By Chicago University

New York, Nov. 26.—Louis "Kid" Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., will meet Jose Lombardo, of Panama at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 12, in the semifinal match of the featherweight title tournament, according to the draw made today by the state athletic commission, which is conducting the event.

Dennis Kramer, Philadelphia, third survivor of the first round eliminations, drew a bye in the tournament which the commission decided to restrict to this trio after their managers rejected a suggestion that two of the defeated contenders, Mike Rando and Bobby Garcia, be given another chance. Kramer automatically advances to the final round against the Kaplan-Lombardo winner.

Kaplan Matched With Lombardo

Chicago, Nov. 26.—More than 245,000 football fans witnessed the University of Chicago eleven in its eight game flight to the western conference championship, setting a new season attendance record for the Maroons. The previous high mark was in 1923 when 222,200 saw Annas Alonzo Stang's players in action.

These figures, announced last night, indicate that the receipts for the 1924 season will reach the $500,000 mark, half of which went to the Maroons' opponents. After the expenses of the season have been deducted, it is probable that a $200,000 profit will be realized.

Idaho Puts Kayo On Ancient Jinx

Portland, Ore., Nov. 26.—University of Idaho's light, fast team, which has upset everything tackled except Stanford, is the outstanding sensation on the Pacific coast this year.

But at Idaho's campus, this miracle is nothing compared to the final overthrowing of the "Oregon Jinx." Sixteen times in 16 years Oregon and Idaho universities have played, without an Idaho victory. Thirteen games were won by Oregon; the other three were tied. But the "Oregon Jinx" has been a real mental obstacle to every Idaho player when the team trotted out to meet Oregon.

The jinx was responsible for Oregon putting over one of the most unheard of stunts in football—winning with but 10 players, back in 1908.

The game was a terrific see-saw, with Oregon behind, then even, much roughness, and soon, every substitute on the Oregon squad had been used to replace those injured and those barred for roughness. Then an Oregon player was barred for roughing an Idaho punter.

All the reserve men were battered to pieces, as Oregon sought to have the offending player reinstated. Idaho's captain demurred. Shortening its line, Oregon switched Moulten, guard, to fullback, and bucked the ball across for the winning touchdown.

Moulten, now dead, was a unique figure in Pacific coast football. One foot had been deformed since birth, but Moulten devised a special type of shoe and still stands out as the Pacific coast's foremost place kicker. In the game described above, Moulten's "iron toe" negotiated four field goals from all angles.

Billy Evans Says

There is no way to figure football this year. Teams that show great in certain big games, one week later look very ordinary.

Against Harvard, Princeton flashed like a world-beater. The Crimson, almost a two-to-one favorite, was overwhelmed by the Tiger 34 to 0.

The gridiron experts all slipped up on the Princeton-Harvard game. Incidentally, Princeton's great showing in that game upset the line for them in the battle with Yale.

Princeton ruled favorite over the Blue, yet Yale outplayed Princeton as decisively as did Princeton Harvard a week previous.

Yale only beat Princeton 10 to 6, while Princeton defeated Harvard 34 to 0, yet the margin of superiority was just as decisive.

Because of Princeton's great showing against Harvard, I switched my football itinerary so as to see the Yale-Princeton contest.

Originally, had planned to look over Nebraska and Notre Dame. I'm sorry I didn't go through with my original program.

Princeton was a huge disappointment to me. It looked like a very ordinary team. No doubt the Harvard game caused me to expect too much.

The Yale line so completely outplayed the Princeton forwards that Roper's much-touted backs simply couldn't get started. Time after time they were downed for a loss back of the line of scrimmage.

Princeton's forward passing was lamentably weak. It looked as if the Tiger passer was merely throwing the ball in the general direction of the Yale goal line, rather than having a direct objective in the form of one or more players eligible and in a position to receive the pass.

In all probability Princeton's weakness in this respect can be traced to the quick charging of the Yale line and the deadly manner in which the

Hard Test Still Ahead For "Kid" Grid Coach

By NEA Service
Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—One year seldom proves the worth of a major college football coach or a big league manager.

This year's Lafayette team, coached by Herb McCracken, the youngest man in the country to occupy such a position, is one of the outstanding eleven of the country.

Although defeated in the big game of the year by Penn 6 to 3, Lafayette outplayed the Philadelphia's throughout the contest.

McCracken was handed a veteran team at Lafayette when Dr. John Sutherland departed for Pittsburg. His veteran team has made him look like a great coach. Lafayette believes he is.

However, next season will be the big test for McCracken. The kid coach will lose seven of his stars, the punch of the 1924 eleven.

Three of his four backs, his two ends and his two guards will graduate in June.

If he can survive that shock and come back with a winner next fall, his reputation will have been made.

WHEAT WEAK EARLY TODAY

Fluctuates in a Mild Range Today

Chicago, Nov. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Wheat scored a material advance in price this afternoon owing largely to assertions that the United States at present has an unsold surplus of only about 16,000,000 bushels of wheat. The market closed firm, 1 1/4 to 2 1/4 cents higher. Dec, $1.34 3/8 to 1-2 and May $1.62 1/2 to 5-8.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Uncertainty as to the extent of December delivery tended to weaken wheat today during the early dealings. Opening prices which ranged from one-half to 3/4 cents lower, with Dec. $1.32 1/4 to 1-2 and May $1.60 to 1-2, were followed by upturns which in some cases went temporarily a little above yesterday's finish but were succeeded by another sag.

PASTOR WILL AID SOLUTION OF MYSTERY

Will Return To Go Into Conference With Prosecutor King in Ohio

Columbus, O., Nov. 26.—Aid of the Rev. C. B. Sheatsley and his four children in the effort to solve the mysterious death of the pastor's 50-year-old wife, whose body, practically incinerated, was found by him in the furnace of the parsonage of Christ Lutheran Church in Bexley, November 17, was expected today by County Prosecutor John R. King on the return of the family from Paris, Ohio, where they have been for the past week. The Rev. Sheatsley said they would return to Columbus by automobile today. The victim of the tragedy, Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, was buried Thursday. While all the members of the Sheatsley family testified voluntarily as to their movements at the time of the tragedy, a number of important developments have come which may be cleared up by additional testimony. Mr. King said, Dr. Brundage and Chemist Long, who are making a scientific investigation of certain phases of the case, were working today, hoping, they said, to have certain reports ready for Prosecutor King tonight.

Analysis of brownish, crimson stains found on a number of articles in the Sheatsley home, to determine whether they were human blood, is being made by Brundage and Long. On this analysis hinges the possibility that the body may be exhumed. The undertaker who moved the body from the furnace and prepared it for burial told Prosecutor King that "the skull was cracked" but he was unable to say whether it resulted from the heat of the furnace or some other cause.

Dormitory For Lutherans Is Plan Advanced

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 26.—Preliminary plans for the erection of dormitories for men and women near the University of North Dakota campus which would also serve as centers for campus activities of Lutheran students at the state university, were discussed at a meeting of representatives of various Lutheran organizations here yesterday.

A. G. Sorlie, governor-elect, addressed the meeting in favor of the proposal. A committee representing five Lutheran congregations of Grand Forks was appointed to study the plans.

Geraldine Farrar Shatters Operatic Tradition in Presenting of "Carmen"

GERALDINE FARRAR

The version of "Carmen" that Geraldine Farrar will offer to the music lovers of Bismarck at the Auditorium on Monday, December 1, will, doubtless, be the subject of much and varied comment for she has treated the score in a distinctly novel fashion and has severed it from all operatic tradition.

Concentrating the interest on the three main characters, and entirely eliminating the omnipresent chorus, the story unfolds itself without futile interruption and gains immeasurably in vitality and dramatic value by this radical departure. It is, of course, an established fact that Farrar has never been known as an imitator. With a decided flair for the original and theatrical, she has always maintained an enviable interest in her characterizations, and in presenting her version of "Carmen" one of the best known and best loved of operas, she will offer something equally as interesting and thrilling as anything that has ever been attempted before in this particular field.

The reaction of American audiences to such a decided innovation has been interesting to contemplate, inasmuch as "Carmen" has for so long been such a popular favorite. However, this modernized version has so far merited nothing but genuine acclaim and already it is looked upon as an immeasurably important step forward in operatic presentation. The cast with which Farrar has surrounded herself is one of exceptional merit. Nurtured among its principals are such splendid artists as Luigi Pasanati, Joseph Royer, Emma Noe, Neira Reiger and Edward Molitor. Carle Veroni, well known throughout the West for his splendid work with the San Carlo Company, is the conductor of an orchestra of excellent musicians.

The costumes, ballet, and scenic effects have all been arranged under Miss Farrar's direct supervision, and again ably demonstrate her ability in first class showmanship. Miss Farrar carries her own 18-piece orchestra.

YOUTH ADMITS ROBBING BANK IN HAVELOCK

Kansas City, Nov. 26.—Charles Billups, 19, under arrest at Topeka, Kansas, and Elmer Johnson, being held here, have confessed to the robbery of the Havelock State bank at Havelock, Neb., 10 days ago, according to authorities.

At Billups' home in Topeka police found $2,800. About $6,000 in cash was obtained in the bank robbery and $52,000 in school bonds.

$8,000 TAKEN IN ROBBERY

Brookings, S. D., Nov. 26.—Robbery of the Brookings postoffice early yesterday by an unidentified band was the largest stamp robbery in the state's history, it was announced today by postal inspectors after completing a check of the loss. The loss amounted to approximately $8,000 of which $125 was in cash and the rest in stamps.

CONTESTS UP TO CONGRESS

Three and Possibly Four Will Be Carried to Body

Washington, Nov. 26.—The senate of the next congress will be called upon to decide at least three election contests. A fourth will be added to the list unless the present senate disposes of the contest against Senator Mayfield, Democrat, Texas, which has been the subject of investigation for nearly two years.

Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, has informed senators in Washington he will contest the election of Sam G. Bratton, Democrat, who was awarded the election by the official count.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, will be forced to defend his election, Daniel J. Steck, his Democratic opponent, having announced plans for bringing a contest. An unusual situation has developed in this contest, as several Republican leaders, including Senator Snoot, of Utah, have announced their intention of supporting Steck. Out of a total of more than $1,000,000 votes, Brookhart was declared winner by around 755 ballots. Steck claims he would have won if ballots marked with arrows, placed there by overzealous supporters, had not been shown out.

Friends of Senator Johnson, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, say he will contest the election of his opponent, Representative Schall, Republican. Senator Johnson claims Schall made untrue charges against him during the campaign in violating the Minnesota corrupt practices act.

Permanent roads are a good investment—not an expense

Now is the Ideal Time to Build More Paved Highways

There is not a single community in the United States that does not need a greater mileage of permanently paved roads.

16,000,000 motor vehicles are now using our highways for business and pleasure. They are packing the paved roads in already congested areas, as well as over-running regions until recently considered remote. And they are pounding to pieces all but permanent roads.

Even though a number of states have made good progress in building Concrete Roads, their present permanently improved mileage is entirely inadequate, as every motorist knows.

Meantime, while the building of permanent highways lags, the production of motor vehicles is increasing the present total at the rate of 4,000,000 a year!

Sooner or later this gap must be closed. Why wait?

Not in a long time have general conditions been so favorable for carrying on such public works as permanent highway building, thus assuring tax payers more for their money.

Now is the ideal time to extend both street and road programs!
